U.S. Says Rand Has Custody Of 170,000 Secret Documents

WASHINGTON, July 22 (NYT).—The Air Force disclosed yesterday that the Rand Corp. has custody of more than 170,000 confidential documents.

Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans, Jr. said in a memorandum that custody of the documents as they are inventoried could be transferred to the Air Force, which contracts for Rand's services.

Mr. Seamans's memorandum, which was received at the Pentagon on July 18, replied to a directive issued on July 1 by Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, who said the documents should be returned to the Pentagon after discovery by the research corporation's professional staff of secret information.

Mr. Seamans said that detailed inspections of Rand's facilities revealed "some deficiencies" in its security procedures. But he did not specify what they were.

At the same time, the White House announced the resignation of Robert W. Lane, D-Mass., as an associate administrator of the Agency for International Development.

Agnew World Tour Assailed As Expensive and Fruitless

WASHINGTON, July 22 (UPI).—Vice President Agnew's current round-the-world trip was attacked in the House today by a congressman who cited reports of a "wild and wasteful" trip.

Rep. John E. Dent, D-Pa., said Mr. Agnew's trip was "a fruitless mission."

The tour was discussed during a debate on a $50,000 extra speech allowance for Speaker Carl Albert to hire more clerks. This bill passed on a voice vote, boosting the Oklahoma Democrat's total congressional district expenses to at least $350,000.

Newsweek magazine had said yesterday Mr. Agnew was traveling with a party of 141 in four Boeing 707s, led by a cargo plane carrying two jetliners.

Mr. Agnew's hotel bill in Kenya was said to be $3,000 a day, the magazine said.

"Aside from backing up the local golf course," Rep. Dent said, "his main outing was to a nearby hunting lodge."

Rep. Agnew's Trip Assailed

Republican leader Gerald Ford of Michigan said he regretted the discussion on Mr. Agnew's trip. He said this had nothing to do with providing funds for Rep. Albert.

Rep. Ford then attacked Rep. William Clay, D. Mo., asking the black congressman to apologize for his remarks about Mr. Agnew's trip.

Rep. Ford said he had never heard such language on the House floor before.

Rep. Clay, referring to Mr. Agnew's critical comments on U.S. black leaders, said this was "game" called mental manipulation on Mr. Agnew's part.

He said Mr. Agnew was "an intellectual elitist who experiences intellectual orgasms by attacking, bulldozing and kicking the oppressed."

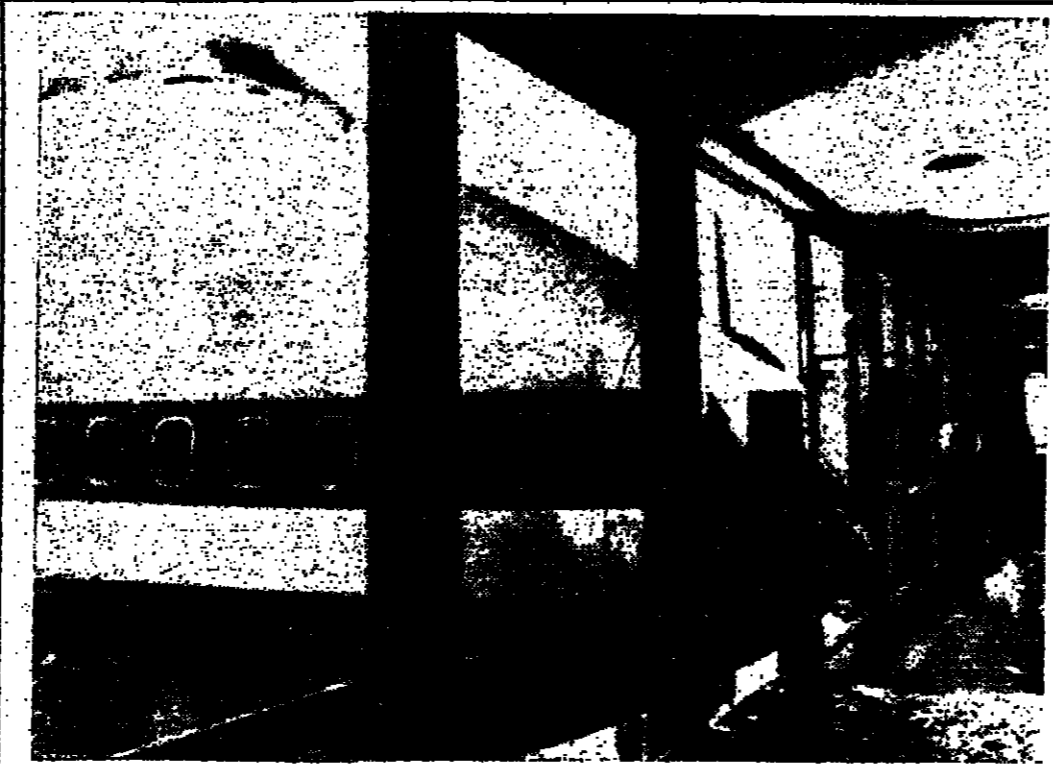

Rep. Clay told newsmen later he would not apologize for the remarks and that Mr. Agnew owed black leaders a public apology.

Rep. Ford, Rep. Clay said, suffers from the same illness which I described of the Vice President's further complicated by the fact that he played football without a helmet.

Space Aides Solve Fault On Apollo-15

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla., July 22 (UPI).—Project engineers reported today that they believe they have solved the one remaining Apollo-15 testing problem, clearing the way for the launch as planned Monday of America's most ambitious moonflight.

"Things have been proceeding very well," James Harrington, space vehicle test supervisor, said. Astronauts Col. David R. Scott, Maj. Alfred M. Worden and Lt. Col. James B. Irwin today were winding up more than two years of training for the 12-day mission by brushing up on procedures for walking in space 48,000 miles above the lunar surface.

The problem that apparently was solved involved a fluctuation in the command ship's electrical power system during a countdown test last week. Engineers never considered the problem serious but wanted to make certain that it wasn't a symptom of a more serious problem.

"Right now, we're in the process of isolating the problem," said Richard C. Proffitt, the spacecraft test controller, during a countdown status report at the launch control center. "We feel that we have isolated it to a 400-cycle inverter."

"We feel that we're well on the track of it and it's not a constraint to launch."

The inverter, a device that converts direct current to alternating current in the command ship, was removed and studied in a testing laboratory. During tests there, engineers were able to duplicate a drop in power that accounted for the fluctuation.

Meanwhile, Florida police and Civil Defense authorities prepared for an estimated 1.5 million visitors to the Cape area to watch the launching.

Space Aides Solve Fault On Apollo-15

WASHINGTON, July 22 (UPI).—The Senate yesterday revived, on a reduced scale, the accelerated public works program vetoed by President Nixon June 29. It also voted again to extend the Appalachian Regional Commission and Economic Development Administration that came under the same veto.

The bill passed 88-2, with Senators James Buckley, Conservative, N.Y., and William Roth, R., Del., casting the negative votes.

The new bill, which goes to the House, includes $500 million for public works instead of the $2 billion that provoked the veto. Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott, of Pennsylvania, "deeply pleased," said the action "is a good example of what the Senate can accomplish with a good piece of legislation."

In other congressional action: The House approved and sent to the Senate a bill to allow buses six inches wider than now permitted on the interstate highway system. Opponents claimed the legislation would lead to wider trucks.

Passage came on a voice vote after Rep. Fred Schwengel, R-Iowa, tried unsuccessfully on a 178-to-313 roll call vote to kill the measure by sending it back to committee.

Rep. Schwengel said drivers of today's 96-inch-wide buses "universally" told him the wider buses "will be harder to handle."

Supporters maintained that the wider buses are more comfortable and safer, would attract more riders and therefore reduce traffic congestion and air pollution caused by automobiles.

Senate agreement on rules for debate of a political campaign-spending bill headed off a possible filibuster. Debate will be limited to 16 hours, with various times ranging from 30 minutes to three hours for amendments.

Once this accord was reached, the bill was laid aside for consideration of the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. loan guarantee. Action on the Lockheed bill was so urgently desired by the administration that Republicans agreed to the time limitation on the campaign spending bill.

Senate Revives Public Works With 25 Pct. of Vetoed Outlay

WASHINGTON, July 22 (UPI).—The House Foreign Affairs Committee formally approved its $3.4 billion aid bill, 30 to 6; a resolution protesting Rand's treatment of American prisoners was altered to delete a plea that the President "negotiate a date for the withdrawal of all U.S. military combat forces from Indochina."

The Senate today approved $58.5 million in refunds to ten airlines which invested in the supersonic transport program. The money was part of a $3 billion appropriation bill for the Department of Transportation and related agencies. The Senate approved the bill 90-0 with no attempt made to cut back on the refund. The refund was not part of the House appropriation bill, but is expected to be included in a compromise version after a conference committee meeting.

BRUSSELS, July 22 (AP).—The North Atlantic Alliance has announced that it will award fellowships for study of the environment and public policy. Grants of $300 to $600 a month and travel expenses will be given for at least six months.

Mansfield Denounces Loan Bill

WASHINGTON, July 22 (UPI).—Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield today denounced a bill to guarantee a $250 million loan to Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

He said it would open the door for other businesses to come to Congress for help when they got in financial trouble.

Sen. Mansfield said he would not vote to cut off debate, "the first time around," if an incipient filibuster against the bill develops into a full-blown talkathon.

"If the government is going to help people, it should help the little people, not the big corporations," the Montana senator said.

Sen. William Proxmire, D., Wis., Lockheed's foremost foe in Congress, threatened today to mastermind a filibuster aimed at preventing a final Senate vote on the bill before Congress adjourns Aug. 8 for a month's vacation.

[The Senate agreed today to vote Monday afternoon on a move to limit debate on the legislation, the Associated Press reported. Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia, the assistant Democratic leader, said the vote would come at 2 p.m. (1800 GMT) on a petition for closure that will be filed sometime tomorrow.]

Defeat for Proxmire

Sen. Proxmire was beaten by a 56-36 vote yesterday in his move to send back for new hearings a bill giving the government authority to guarantee repayment of up to $2 billion worth of loans to failing corporations such as Lockheed.

A second crucial victory came for Lockheed yesterday when the House Banking Committee voted 23 to 11 against its chairman and approved a bill identical to the Senate measure.

Meanwhile, rumors were circulating in the Pentagon that Deputy Defense Secretary David Packard might resign over his split with the Nixon administration on the legislation it favors to shore up Lockheed and other defense contractors.

Mr. Packard went before the House Banking Committee Monday to testify on the bill. His prepared testimony contained three pages denouncing the fund idea, but shortly before his appearance he called back copies of the text and killed those three pages, although he told newsmen they represented his true opinions.

U.S. Is Ending Ban on Credits For Exports to Red Nations

WASHINGTON, July 22 (NYT).—House and Senate conferees agreed today to open the way for a further expansion of trade with Communist countries, including China, by authorizing the Export-Import Bank to supply export credits for shipments to those countries.

The action, still subject to approval by both houses, would repeal an outright ban on such financing that has been in the law for three years. President Nixon would still have to make the decision to permit the Export-Import Bank to grant the credits, which are often essential to making sales of U.S. goods.

Earlier this month the House overturned the recommendation of its Banking Committee and voted to keep the present ban in the law. The Senate had voted to repeal it, with little debate. Today the House conferees, all members of the Banking Committee, yielded to the Senate position.

Most Controversial Item

This was the most controversial item in a bill that, while not on the whole controversial, could have major importance for U.S. exports. It would extend the life and expand the lending power of the Export-Import Bank and, more significantly, remove the bank's net loan disbursements from the limitations of the budget.

This exemption from budget limitations will make possible an expansion of the various devices by which the bank seeks to aid U.S. exports. Henry Kearns, the bank president, has said he believes this one move would bring about a U.S. export expansion of at least $2 billion, at a time when more exports are urgently desired to help reduce the big deficit in the U.S. international balance of payments.

The removal of the ban on export credits for shipments to the Communist countries was neither favored nor strongly opposed by the Nixon administration. The next question will be whether opponents of such credits in the House will attempt to overturn today's Senate-House conference agreement. The best estimate was that the conference version of the bill would prevail.

Romania Might Be First

Administration witnesses suggested at House hearings that if the ban on export financing for shipments to Communist countries were repealed, such credit might be permitted, at least at first, for Romania.

It has become known that the administration has suggested willingness to ease trade with Romania in another way—passage of legislation that would apply normal, relatively low tariffs on imports from Romania instead of the higher tariffs imposed on goods from Communist countries generally.

200 U.S. Scientists Helping War's Victims

By Victor Cohen
WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—Two hundred scientists and science students at a dozen American universities are doing research to help those they call the victims of U.S. aggression in Vietnam.

The restrictions evidently have not been applied to the American Friends Service Committee, which sends penicillin, open heart surgical gear and other medical supplies to both Hanoi and Saigon.

"We'd be happy to take grants from the South Vietnamese government too," said Dr. Richard Lewontin, one Chicago investigator.

"But in my opinion the government of South Vietnam doesn't represent anyone but the Pentagon and themselves."

Ribicoff Offers Amendments to Poverty Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, July 22 (UPI)—Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D. Conn., said today that the government could eradicate poverty simply by giving cash to the nation's 25.5 million poor.

In a Senate speech, the Kennedy administration's secretary of health, education and welfare outlined legislation designed to streamline the welfare programs.

If the $31 billion that the government will spend on 188 separate poverty programs next year were divided among the poor, Sen. Ribicoff said, every poor family of four would receive $4,800, enough to lift it out of poverty.

Sen. Ribicoff's proposals will be offered as amendments to the Nixon administration's welfare reform bill. Key provisions of Sen. Ribicoff's proposals include providing 300,000 public service jobs for the poor instead of the 200,000 in the Nixon bill; raising the minimum payment for a family of four to $2,800 at once and higher in the future instead of the $2,400 in the bill; doubling job training expenditures and having the federal government assume all welfare costs by 1976.

U.S. Makers of Mood Drugs Accused of Misleading Ad

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—The commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has labeled as highly exaggerated many advertising claims for well-known drugs taken by millions to calm down or wake themselves up.

Dr. Charles C. Edwards told a Senate committee hearing on medicines yesterday that the problem of overuse of "mood drugs" is becoming increasingly serious.

Mood drugs include sedatives, tranquilizers, stimulants and sleeping pills.

"The advertising industry took advantage of the stresses of modern society and the discovery of mood drugs to promote these drugs in such a way as to actually create a climate of need," said Dr. Edwards.

He told the Senate Small Business Committee's panel on monopoly that manufacturers of mood drugs stretch claims for their medical effectiveness.

He said the misleading claims appear in the media—especially television—but medical journals also are being bombarded with ads for prescription mood drugs "cleverly designed to create an unnecessary demand for the drugs."

He said a familiar tactic used by the advertisements is to show by the advertisements how to solve frustrations in the muddle of today's world.

For example, he noted, Ritalin, a prescription drug, was promoted to combat what the manufacturers called "environmental depression."

The symptoms for the illness were said to be sleepless nights and complaints of tiredness.

Many of the drugs had been stopped after prying by the federal government. Dr. Edwards said, but he added that there still was much to be done.

Egypt Is Repaying Britain for Losses

LONDON, July 22 (AP)—Egypt has agreed to pay Britain $54 million in compensation for British interests in Egypt nationalized between 1952 and 1964.

The Foreign Office said today that the agreement, reached in Cairo, covers about a percent of the value of the British interests and is in line with similar arrangements between Egypt and other countries, officials said here.

Repayments will be made by September, 1974.

The 280 SE 3.5 is distinguished from the 280 SE by 20 grams of chrome on the outside

And a 3.5 litre engine inside

For Mercedes-Benz drivers, automotive progress does not mean changing the shape of the car.

To Mercedes-Benz, progress means much more than different sheets of metal. It is that way too with the new version of the 280 SE with its 3.5 litre engine and power assisted steering as standard equipment.

By this we don't mean the acceleration from 0 to 100 kph in 9 seconds, or the continuous maximum speed of 210 kph or the 200 net bhp. These figures alone will not prompt owners of the 280 S/SE to change to the V8 engine. The important factor is the all round performance of this mature engine.

Not all V8 engines are the same

This engine challenges all of the current ideas of flexibility and torque. It puts tremendous power on to the road. In all speed ranges. Yet it still has power in reserve. This makes it reliable. And gives it a long life. Two overhead camshafts ensure that the valves operate with precision right up to maximum engine speed: (6,000 rpm). Electronic fuel injection meters to each cylinder exactly the correct amount of fuel required at that moment. Transistorised ignition controls the spark more accurately and makes it more powerful.

Pure Breath

This engine is also ahead of its time in yet another aspect. It already meets future European exhaust emission regulations.

The well known German newspaper "Frankfurter Rundschau" says "without doubt the V8 is the best engine being built in Germany today". Three years ago experts were believing that the reciprocation engine to be at the end of its development. What do you think? Do write and tell us. Even if you are not a Mercedes-Benz driver - yet.

Mercedes-Benz

What Progress Means to Mercedes-Benz Drivers

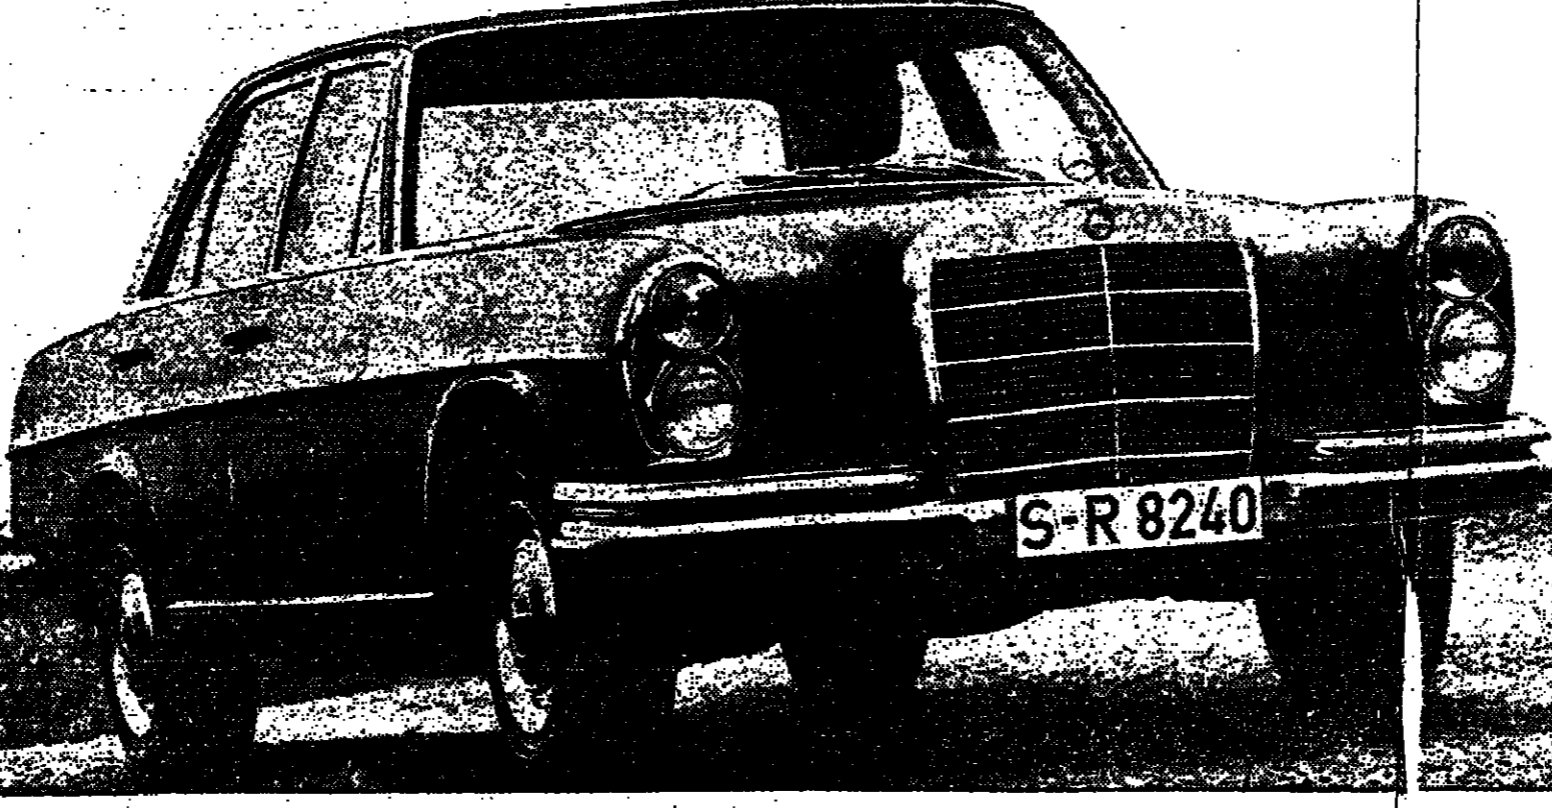

They were the first to ride in a passenger safety cell (1959). They were the first people to have an impact absorber under the steering wheel (1967).

They demand real progress, not bulging sheet metal. Power, rather than a sporty shape. Horsepower instead of imitation rally equipment. Service in place of promises. Long service life as opposed to short lived fashion.

They want the car of the future, now. Eight cylinder engines with exhaust emission control. The Anti Bloc System which makes it possible to brake without danger, even in corners. They take for granted the most severe crash tests and air bag experiments and the ever increasing Mercedes-Benz research budget.

They expect to find Mercedes-Benz service stations all over the world. (Already there are Mercedes dealers in 166 of the 171 countries of the world. The latest figures show 84,000 employees in 4,183 service stations.)

But Mercedes-Benz drivers are still not satisfied. Neither are Mercedes designers. And that is the way it should be. Because progress thrives on challenge.

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott
Five months ago Jay Feigus won the master pair title in a New York sectional tournament at the age of 78, and became the oldest man ever to win a major New York title.
Proving that this was no accident and that he is now playing as well as ever in a long career that includes a Vanderbilt victory, Feigus captured the regional open pair championship in New York last week. His partner on occasions was Aaron Greene, a mere youngster of 63.
The diagrammed deal gave them a fine score, and permitted Feigus to demonstrate his skill in dummy-play.
Greene as North was too strong to bid one no-trump, and his one-club bid was overcalled by East with one heart. South bid one spade, an action that most experts would agree with.
West raised hearts, and North used a cue-bid to show great strength, pushing his partner to game in spades. As West has both the club king and a sure trump trick, it may seem that South's contract is hopeless.
A heart was led, and when East won with the ace he shifted to the diamond queen. South won with the king and followed with the ace and king of spades. He then played a third round of trumps, forcing West into the lead in this position:

BOOKS

THE ONION EATERS

By J. P. Donleavy. Delacorte Press. A Seymour Lawrence. 306 pp. $7.95.

Reviewed by Anatole Broyard

CONTRARY to popular opinion, a literary reputation is one of the hardest things in the world to lose. Once among the elect, a novelist is as difficult to impeach as a President. There are some who receive large advances on the strength of a string of failures because somewhere, early in their careers, they had a single success. An established novelist is usually given the benefit of the doubt, and since literature is such a doubtful business in any case, this is all the margin he needs. If a book is painfully bad, it can always be praised in words beginning with "it," such as "it is a bold, rollicking, ravaging or riveting. In desperate cases, reviewers can fall back on "any, irrelevant or outrageous. When a book seems to make no sense at all, to offer nothing recognizable to the reader, then it is sure to be described as bursting the confines of the conventional novel.
Which brings us to J. P. Donleavy's "The Onion Eaters." For those who enjoyed Mr. Donleavy's first novel, "The Ginger Man," and rode along with "The Beasts of Ballinacorney," "The Saddest Summer of Samuel S." and "Meet My Maker the Mad Molecule," here is a real test of character. Clayton Claw Cleaver Clementine, the hero of the book, has not one but two claims to immortality: Four alternative names and an anatomical anomaly to boot. (It will not be identified in this review, a piece of fastidiousness that may well set out the first printing of "The Onion Eaters.")
As the book opens, Clementine's great-aunt has just given him a decrepit castle on the Irish coast. After buying a dog—"Hello wool wool. Big bow wow."—he goes to live in the castle. Shortly after his arrival, he is joined by a succession of "many" characters, beginning with three scientists who specialize in the measurement and classification of random phenomena; who have, it almost goes without saying, developed an aphrodisiac; who propose to infest Ireland with poisonous snakes in order to stimulate the waning alertness of the population.
By the end of the book, nothing has happened and has resulted. Any or all of actions or incidents could be changed, or even reversed, out making the slightest of a difference. In 306 pages of story for effect, there has not been a believable character, a meaty incident, a good laugh, an interesting observation or a memorable sentence. Mr. Donleavy has burst the confines of the conventional novel, all right. If he has managed this so fully that perhaps "The Eaters" should not be called a novel at all.

Song of the Islands Isn't a Hit With Boyer

HONOLULU, July 22 (AP)—To a guy who's been to the top of the road back can be a bit funny. And that's the way Cleo Boyer, the former Atlanta Braves star, finds life with the Hawaii Islanders in the Pacific Coast League.

"You never notice these things when you're fighting your way to the top," said Boyer. "But when you come back down the differences are obvious."

Boyer, 34, is rated by the baseball encyclopedia as the fifth best third baseman in baseball history. And he figures he's better than 20 other third basemen in the majors now.

Boyer says if he had been playing at Atlanta, he would have five or six home runs on balls that were out here. But instead he's got only one home run.

Boyer does want to go back to the majors this season if possible. But he has little hope of that happening.
